Good morning Murray,

Like most of the villages along the north Norfolk coast Thornham has a wide expanse of marshland between the village and the sea that is exposed when the tide goes out. Boats are left high until the tide returns to refloat them although I'm not sure this one is going anywhere.

This photograph is available to buy on the website, just click on the image to be taken to the webpage. As always other sizes and finishes are available, please get in touch with your requirements.

If you are enjoying The Monday Picture please share it with your friends, this is the link they can use to sign up.

Until next Monday have a great week

Very best wishes,
