Good morning {firstname},

Do you remember a couple of weeks ago I posted a shot of a yacht sailing into Poole harbour taken from Sandbanks? This is the ferry, captured about ten minutes after the sun had set on the same evening.

There's a wonderful stillness about this image, I really like the colours in the sky and the way they are reflected in the clouds and on the water surface. Moments like this are a combination of right time, right place and perfect weather conditions, it's what makes photography rewarding and it's why we stand and wait for that perfect shot when everyone else has gone home.

This image will be available to purchase from the website in the next couple of days, or contact me directly at studio@murraylaidlaw.com

A fine art print under acrylic glass with a slimline aluminium frame or in a print only option.
Tagsmart Certification included.

Until next Monday have a great week.
